University Policy, effective as of the fall 2016 semester - Undergraduates

Undergraduate students in the College of Arts, Sciences, and Engineering must achieve a specified cumulative GPA and accumulate a specific number of credit hours at the end of each semester. They must also complete their degree within a specific number of semesters. Failure to meet these standards, which are based on New York State and federal regulations, will result in the loss of eligibility for institutional, federal, and state aid. Transfer students enter the charts based on the number of credits transferred (16 credits equals one semester of attendance).

In addition to the Satisfactory Academic Progress requirements outlined here, a 3.0 overall GPA is required to maintain eligibility for certain merit scholarships. Students are notified of this requirement at the time the merit scholarship is awarded by the Admissions Office. The same standards for Extenuating Circumstances and Regaining Eligibility are applied to the 3.0 GPA merit requirement as are applied to the need-based financial aid.

All semesters of attendance at the University are included in determining the semester to be used in the qualitative (GPA) and pace (course completion) standards outlined below, even those in which a student withdrew after the start of the semester. Summer terms are also evaluated (12 or more credits equals one semester; 6-11 credits equals half of a semester). Semesters when a student was not charged full-time tuition are not counted toward the quantitative (maximum semester limit) standard.

The College Center for Advising Services, the Dean of Students Office, and the Office of Minority Student Affairs are informed of all students who are not making Satisfactory Academic Progress, so that they can provide appropriate support services.

Undergraduate students must achieve the specified cumulative GPA* at the end of each semester:

*Grades for classes that are being ignored as part of Academic Support’s academic re-evaluation process must be included in the SAP GPA calculation.

Undergraduate students are eligible for consideration for merit- and need-based institutional financial assistance for eight semesters of enrollment. Consideration for state and federal aid extends through the tenth semester of enrollment.

Individual coursework affects the GPA and course completion standards in different ways based on how the course is registered on the student’s academic record:

- Courses which are dropped, previously passed courses which are successfully repeated, audited courses, and incomplete courses will not count toward the number of credits successfully completed nor toward the GPA requirement.
- Academic Support’s academic re-evaluation process cannot be considered in determining Satisfactory Academic Progress. Therefore, coursework that is being ignored as part of academic re-evaluation are included in the GPA and course completion calculations.
- Satisfactory/Fail and Pass/Fail coursework that is satisfactorily completed will count toward the number of credits successfully completed but will not count toward the GPA requirement.
Financial Aid Warning Periods
Students who fall below any of the Satisfactory Academic Progress standards are granted a one semester financial aid Warning period. The financial aid Warning period allows a student to continue to receive financial aid, while simultaneously notifying the student that he/she must achieve Satisfactory Academic Progress in all three areas by the end of the semester.

No formal appeal process is necessary, though students are highly encouraged to meet regularly with their financial aid counselor and academic adviser to ensure that they stay on course to achieving satisfactory academic progress by the end of the semester.

For students exceeding the maximum number of semesters (e.g. 9th semester appeals), the 9th semester coursework must allow for the completion of the degree in order for a Warning Period to be provided. Otherwise, an Academic Plan appeal is necessary.

Financial Aid Probation Status
Students who do not achieve Satisfactory Academic Progress standards by the end of the one semester Warning period are notified that they no longer qualify for institutional, federal, or state aid via email as well as through FAOnline.

Students who believe their extenuating circumstances merit an appeal should meet with a Financial Aid counselor to review their situation and the appeal process. Appeals must be submitted to the Financial Aid Office at least three weeks prior to the start of classes. Late appeals may not be considered.

Students for whom an appeal is granted will be provided with a one semester financial aid Probationary period. The financial aid Probationary period allows a student to continue to receive financial aid, while completing a defined set of coursework designed to allow the student to achieve Satisfactory Academic Progress in all three areas by the end of the semester.

Students for whom it would be mathematically impossible, or otherwise unrealistic, to achieve Satisfactory Academic Progress after only one semester of financial aid Probation may instead appeal for a multi-semester financial aid Probationary period through the submission of a detailed Academic Plan. The Academic Plan allows a student to continue to receive financial aid, while completing a defined set of coursework designed to allow the student to achieve Satisfactory Academic Progress in all three areas by the end of period defined in the Academic Plan. Academic Plans are subject to the same appeal review process as requests for a single financial aid Probationary semester.

Appeal Decisions
Appeals will be reviewed by the student's Financial Aid counselor, the Director, and where necessary, the appeals committee. Students will be notified in writing as to the outcome of their appeal once the Director has consulted with the Dean’s Office and OMSA, where appropriate, and has reviewed all aspects of the written appeal.

Appeals containing significant unnecessary coursework, extenuating circumstances which lack significant merit, and personal plans which fail to address the original cause of the Satisfactory Academic Progress problem are subject to denial. Appeals are not approved for the sole purpose of pursuing an additional major, additional minor, additional electives, etc. Appeals are generally not approved in situations where the student simply failed to focus on their coursework appropriately.

Students who are having trouble meeting the Satisfactory Academic Progress standards due to a learning disability are encouraged to work closely with Academic Support to determine whether alternate guidelines for measuring academic progress are appropriate.
Students who do not successfully complete the appeal process will not be eligible to receive financial aid until they have achieved the necessary GPA and course completion requirements, either through enrollment at the University without financial assistance, or through approved transfer credit.

Appeal Process

Every appeal is unique, so it is critical that students first meet with their Financial Aid counselor to review their specific situation and identify the necessary steps required to submit an appeal. Students should provide as much detailed information regarding their personal situation as possible. Students are required to complete the following activities prior to the submission of an appeal requesting a financial aid Probationary semester:

- Develop an achievable course of study: During the financial aid Probationary semester, the student will be expected to complete all coursework and achieve the GPA outlined in the appeal. Therefore, it is important that the student develop a plan that he/she believes will allow for achieving this standard and that the student review this plan with all of the following individuals.
  - Major Department: Meeting with the major department helps ensure that the student understands the requirements of the major, so that the student is pursuing an appropriate course of study that will allow for the necessary improvement in academic progress (GPA, course completion, or degree completion), while accomplishing the major requirements.
  - Advising Services: Meeting with College Center for Advising Services helps ensure that the student’s transcript has been reviewed for accuracy in relation to all aspects necessary for graduation (clusters, major requirements, writing requirements, etc.), that the student is aware of all support services that exist to help the student improve his/her academic performance, that the student’s planned course of study allows for the necessary improvement in academic progress (GPA, course completion, or degree completion), and prepares the Dean’s Office to provide input that will be required later in the appeal process.
  - OMSA: Meeting with OMSA is required for all students enrolled in the HEOP program to ensure that OMSA can provide the maximum level of support and guidance to assist the student in meeting graduation requirements.

- Submit a written appeal to Financial Aid: The written appeal must include:
  - A detailed explanation of the extenuating circumstances that led to the student not meeting the Satisfactory Academic Progress standards.
  - The steps the student will take to ensure that these extenuating circumstances do not prevent the student from making satisfactory academic progress in the future.
  - A detailed plan of full-time study outlining the specific coursework that will be taken, including major requirements, cluster requirements, etc., as well as the GPA that will be attained.
  - An indication of the advisors, faculty members, or other University staff with whom the student met to develop the plan of study.
  - If the student is appealing for an Academic Plan (a multi-semester financial aid Probationary period), then the complete academic plan for all semesters must be submitted at the same time. Academic Plans may not be submitted one semester at a time.
  - Supporting documentation from advisers, counselors, or other administrators familiar with the student’s situation may also be included, if the student feels it will strengthen the appeal.
